Evens Prize for Peace Education

Since its establishment, the Evens Foundation has awarded biennial prizes in various fields to fulfill part of its mission. In this tradition, it is now launching the first Evens Prize for Peace Education as part of the new Peace Education Program. Through this new Prize, the Evens Foundation seeks to recognize organizations, associations or institutions that offer training programs to (future) teachers (among others) in learning how to manage interpersonal and/or intergroup conflicts in a positive and constructive way. In this respect, learning is considered to be a process of personal change, in the sense that how we learn is as important as the content of that learning.
